IF YOU WANT TO DO WELL, DO GOOD—THESE ARE WORDS TO LIVE BY FOR COMPANIES WE LOVE

It's our privilege to bring you a beguiling array of products that will not only lighten your heart with their beauty and style but also warm you with the knowledge that a portion of the proceeds goes to a host of worthy causes—from a food bank, youth organizations, cancer research, and the arts to wildlife preservation, education, and the welfare of women. Go forth to shop in good conscience! ▶

"Vine" lacquered chair, Diane Paparo Studio. Porcelain and pottery, Lesley Anton. Currey & Company "Regiment" chandelier and Antoniors "Louis 6" wood chandeliers, both through Layla Grayce.

market place

"Bambu Nesting Baskets," from $15.85.

Greenfeet "BAMBU" BASKETS

An online purveyor of all things eco—from bird feeders to decorative baskets—Greenfeet celebrates living and giving. It supports The Kistner Wildlife Foundation, a wildlife sanctuary that tends animals with special needs through noninvasive medical care (greenfeet.com).

Layla Grayce ONLINE BOUTIQUE

This online boutique offers a good-looking mélange of furniture, lighting, and accents. Its greatest gift? Donations to Bright Print, a nonprofit focusing on education and support of young women at risk for cancer (laylagrayce.com).

"Regiment," $1,522, by Currey & Company.

Give back. Lend your talents AND YOUR ENERGIES TO THE WORLD.

DIANE PAPARO

The "Vine" armchair, $4,950, is one of the graceful furniture pieces by Diane Paparo, whose beautiful creations are bursting with eco-ethics. She also works through the Women's Business Enterprise National Council (wbenc.org) to extend guidance and help to other women (dcpstudiousa.com).

Anna Bondoc PAPER ARTISTRY

ABCs and 123s are kid-friendly and cool with Anna Bondoc's artistry, like DuckbV (above), $200. The former teacher, who works in hand-cut, layered card stock, recently helped out at a Los Angeles charter school by fashioning learning tools to make class work fun (annabondoc.com). ▶
